On September 11, 2001, while we sat quietly in our classrooms, absorbed by the intricate details of our chosen professions, panic was filling the streets of New York City. The twin 110-story buildings, where tens of thousands of people worked, collapsed after being struck by jetliners. Thick smoke and ash from the towers' collapse brought an artificial darkness to a city that never sleeps. And while many watched the TV images of the twin towers, terror struck again at the Pentagon as another jetliner crashed into the building. Still reeling from the shock of the day's events, another plane came crashing to the ground in Pennsylvania.

Strength, courage, and confidence unimaginable in the face of such adversity swept across the country as we came together with a fierce conviction and commitment to lift our nation upward and onward. Humanity prevailed as selfless acts of benevolence became the rule, rather than the exception.

We will always solemnly remember the tragedy of September 11, 2001- the horror, the anguish, the fear, the anger, and the sorrow. But we must also try to hold onto the best parts of the human spirit that rose above the destruction of that day, because the most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen or touched, but are felt with the heart and soul.

Dedicated to the heroes and victims of the September 11, 2001 tragedy

Dear students:

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to this edition of X-Ray. Virginia Commonwealth University is proud of the more than 4,000 students and residents who are studying on the Medical College of Virginia Campus to go on to practice dentistry, medicine, nursing, and pharmacy and in the allied health professions. Our schools and the VCU Health System make us one of the most comprehensive academic health centers in the nation.

The array of nationally and internationally recognized faculty working on new discoveries and their appreciations in the medical and health sciences is one of the tremendous benefits of your education here. From health administration to physical therapy, your faculty are attracting national recognition for excellence in professional, graduate education and in life sciences research. They are involved in all aspects of your education--in the classroom, in the laboratory, and with patients. You are truly fortunate to be studying with such an outstanding academic core group.

Best wishes to you on your studies. And congratulations to those of you who will be earning your degrees this May!

Sincerely,

WEST HOSPITAL

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF VIRGINIA
OFFICE OF THE TREASURER

School of Allied Health

As you read this issue of the X-Ray you will be impressed by the tremendous accomplishments of the School of Allied Health Profession's students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

The shifting of demographic macroeconomic forces, volatility in the health care industry, and rapidly emerging technologies have all significantly impacted our school. As a consequence, we have developed state-of-the-art programs, which have enhanced our capacity for even greater achievement and quality improvement. By many objective measures, our school is one of the leading schools of allied health in the country. But to declare victory or to become too complacent would harm many of the accomplishments this school has made. Hence, we will continue our bold new initiatives and continue to make change happen--to continue as the neational leader in allied health higher education. All these things will enhance the academic and clinical excellence of our students. We are so proud of our students, as these persons will provide positive leadership in their chosen profession in the future.

Soon many of you will be joining the ranks of our distinguished alumni. I hope you will remember your VCU years fondly, and maintain an active relationship with us. On behalf of the faculty and staff of the School of Allied Health Professions, congratulations and sincere best wishes for your future.

Sincerely,

School of Dentistry

The VCU School of Dentistry Class of 2002 is about to enter the dental profession to serve the people of Virginia and beyond. I trust you agree that you are well prepared to face the many opportunities and challenges your new careers will bring. We have an outstanding faculty and support staff that collectively comprise the best that dental education has to offer. I am confident they have provided you the breadth, depth, and quality of instruction and learning experiences that you need to enter the postdoctoral education program of your choice or directly into the practice of general dentistry or dental hygiene. For your part, you have demonstrated the capability and dedication needed to succeed in our profession.

While the nation and the Commonwealth face serious economic uncertainty, you are entering a profession that has remained strong for its members as well as the public. The School of Dentistry strives to sustain its strengths and yet improve where it can. We would like to keep you informed about new developments at the School, so as you pursue your professional careers, I would ask that you not lose touch with VCU or the School of Dentistry.

In Loving Memory of a Friend

Sigrid Salinas

1969 - 2001

How do I begin to describe a friendship that was only six years in its infancy, yet had an impact on me like it were sixty? How do I begin to thank a woman who touched my life in a way only she could? How do I say good-bye, when just yesterday was our first hello?

Sig, it seems like yesterday that we were in that freshman biology lecture hall where we first met. This encounter would lead to many study sessions, where I really got to know the person you really were. You were a woman with goals and aspirations, longing for a life you had put off for so long. You were a woman with compassion and empathy, yet empathy you would not receive.

As the years passed, you began to share with me a life which few knew you had, yet pity you would not accept. Instead of dwelling on your own hardships, you focused your energy on making others happy, perhaps, because your happiness was far beyond your reach.

This past July you were a part of the happiest day of my life. You and Erika shared a weekend with Laura and I in Boston, as we celebrated our marriage. I was reminded how much you loved our music, when the same music was played during your memorial. During those three short days, I was able to see what a wonderful mother you were. Erika, only a mere 10 years old, had every bit of class and elegance that you portrayed. Her intelligence was well beyond her years. She wanted to accompany you on the trip, because she wanted to visit Harvard, a University she was destined to attend. I hope when I am blessed with the gift of children, that I am able to raise them as wonderfully as you did your own.

Perhaps the most vivid memories of our friendship were during the last week of your life. You showed me more courage and strength during the last four days of your life than anyone has ever shown me. As in years past, you shared with me your troubled life, still looking for no sympathy. However, on Thursday, the day before you passed away, I could tell there was something more you wanted to say to me, something you failed to say in the days prior. In your own way, you were saying, "good-bye." You didn't want me to worry, but you wanted me to know that it would be our last words to each other. I realized this as I heard of a house fire on my way to school on Friday. There were three casualties. I needed no address. I needed no names. I knew by your "good-bye" the day before.

In your life I am not sure you knew what a wonderful person you were. I want you to know what an impact you had on my life and the lives of all who met you. I hope you are now truly happy with your two children by your side. I hope someday to meet you again. Until then, I will strive to have an impact on others that only you could have had on me. Until then, my friend, thank you. Until then..."good-bye."

School of Medicine

By anyone's reckoning, graduating from Medical School is one of life's major events. For many, the significance relates to accomplishing a goal, the end of a long struggle, becoming a physician. All of this is true but consider also, you have passed through the eye of a needle, through the looking glass, passed the last entry point into a long career of health care service. As your long academic struggle comes to an end, your life-long, on-the-job learning just begins. You are entering a remarkable century of unprecedented biomedical promise. Congratulations on gaining access to a fantastic life-long voyage.

To the School of Medicine, Class of 2002, I say, "go out and get it," or to borrow a slogan, "Just do it." All the best to you in your careers.

Sincerely,

H.H. Newsome, Jr., M.D.

In Memorium

The following was written by a medical student in honor of those who so nobly donated their bodies in the name of science. These cadavers proved invaluable in the learning of anatomy. We medical students could never have discovered the complexities of the human body without them. For this gift, we thank you.

Untitled #3

You were a poor historian.
You never said a word about what was wrong, but I knew...
I knew something was wrong.
My other patients would say, "Hey doc, I have this throbbing pain in my shoulder."
But you never complained.
That scar on your abdomen meant something, but you wanted me to figure it out.
You would never say a word.

But you also never told me about your children, about how they used to play under the big maple tree that sat in the front yard of your house.
You never mentioned that your husband used to whisper, "I love you," before you fell asleep every night.
Or that when you were twelve years old,
how you scored the winning run in that kickball game.
You never told me how sad you were the day you found out your father passed away.
Or about how much he enjoyed your chocolate chip cookies.
You never told me about how seeing your grandchildren brought you so much happiness, that you forgot about all your pains.

I saw you everyday
and I did not know these things about you.
Perhaps I just did not know enough to ask.
Or maybe I was so engrossed in the learning of medicine,
that I forgot to ask.
But you never complained.
In fact, I think that at night,
when no one was looking, you were even smiling.
You were smiling because you knew that with the passing of every day, you were changing my life.
For you see, although I do not get to visit you as often now as I once did,
I still see you everyday.

You are in every patient that visits me.
When that man complains about the leg pain, it is your muscles that I see,
your tendons and blood vessels that I picture.
For that, all the patients that I will see in my entire lifetime thank you.
For that, I too, would like to thank you.

You were a poor historian, but you made a great teacher.

School of Nursing

Dear Students of the Class of 2002:

What an exciting time to be entering nursing as a new graduate. Health care institutions are anticipating your graduation. Schools of Nursing are eager to have you continue your education with them. The world awaits you, the new graduates.

Society generally, and health care agencies specifically, recognize now as never before that you are a scarce national treasure to be supported and encouraged to become the best you can become. Opportunities for you abound.

As you progress through your career and life, I hope you remain connected to this, your alma mater, and your return on occasion to reminisce about "the way it was." You have been prepared with basics for entry into practice; we look forward to hearing how you continue to grow and develop from your professional roots. I extend best wishes for a long and rewarding career.

Sincerely,

Nancy F. Langston, PhD, RN, FAAN

School of Pharmacy

I am very pleased to take this opportunity to salute the graduating class of 2002. For the past four years we had the privilege of guiding you on the road to becoming a pharmacist. You have at your disposal unlimited potential for success. You have already given much of your time and energies to the School and to the profession and we are grateful. But you will be asked to do more and I am confident that you will. It is often said that the best thing we can do in life is to discover our strengths and build upon them. In designing strategies to accomplish this, I urge you to keep in mind that you must be committed to lifelong learning. I hope each of you will carry away from the School of Pharmacy a love of learning, a desire to learn, and an appreciation for how important it is to learn. It must be a continuous process that evolves throughout your lifetime. I hope you carry with you a feeling of pride and accomplishment as you leave this University and School of Pharmacy. We are honored that you have chosen our program to prepare you to practice your profession, and we hope you will allow us to continue to play a significant role in your professional growth and development in the future.

All of us at the School of Pharmacy wish you the very best in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

Dean

"Psst. Hey Kelley, when is this excruciatingly boring meeting over?"

SGA reps doing a fantastic job of pretending to be awake.

Halloween

Top, left: Hey, redneck guy, you're not exactly perfect, but you can do better than that. He's a man, man.

Top, right: Shane didn't come dressed up at all, but Saumil and Naureen are looking sharp.

Above: Is that Jawwad or Glenn in the middle there? Rusty helped build the new Gateway building.

Right: She's 6'8" with the hair, 5'2" without it.

Right: Gene Simmons of Kiss hitting on Medusa.
Below: PT's always look good, except for Franz over there on the left.
Below, right: Now that is a fairy.
Bottom: Nursing students love to dress up.

Bottom: Ryan, Asian trailer trash with a beautiful mullet.

All Dressed Up...

Right: These idiots are running backwards.

Below: Glenn feigns a leg injury so he could hang out with his buddy Donald.

Below, right: The baby in this stroller averaged a respectable 4:40 mile to finish 18th among infants in the fiercely competitive 6-12 month age group.

5k

Left: Ready, set, go! All proceeds from this year's MCV 5k at Byrd Park went to Meals on Wheels.

Above: The race's advertising campaign: "3 guys and a sign."

Below, left: Megan Brenner won the coveted fastest female overall, but didn't impress me too much. (Just kidding, Megan, please don't beat me up again).

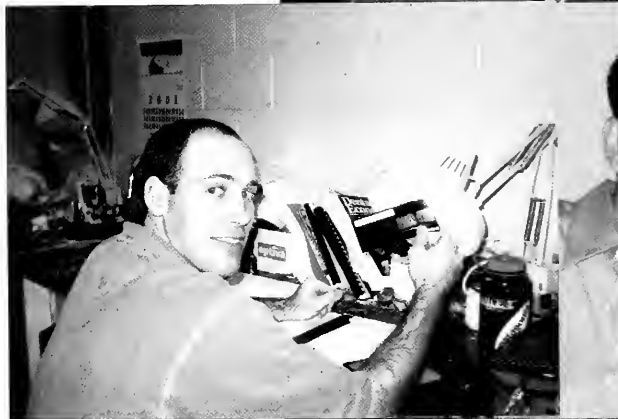

Below: This little guy got a very respectable time and 1st place in his age group. Christy Coleman, this year's organizer, hands him a medal.

The Editors

Patrick Maeng

Editor-in-Chief

I would sincerely like to thank my assistant editor, Cecily Santos for all of her help and hard work. A big thank you to Vicky Hardy for her patience and printing prowess. Thanks to Glenn Ereso for the use of his computer, Della, to Suhas Badarinath for his laptop, and Jawwad Khan for his camera work and scanning. I would also like to thank Marili Uno for contributing her eloquent 9-11 essay and to Will Kao and Rob Mansman for their contributions. Thanks to my family, Charles, Carol, and Brian Maeng for their love and support. And a special thanks to my spunky friend, Kobe Tai, for her last minute inspiration.

Cecily Santos
